A NIGHT SESSION.

HOT WORDS BETWEEN SENATORS LAMAR AND CONKLING.

The Sergeant-at-Arms Raiding After Meeting Senators.—Mr. Garfield Willing to Stay from Home.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—SENATE.—The Senate remained in session all night. The Senate refused to adjourn unless the Republicans would agree to fix a time for the vote on the army bill to-day, and the night was passed in roll calls and attempts to compel attendance of absent Senators. At an early hour this morning an exciting personal controversy took place between Senators Conkling and Lamar in which Senator Lamar pronounced a statement of Senator Conkling's a falsehood and which he said he repelled with all the unmitigated contempt that he felt for the author of it. Senator Conkling, in answering him, said if the member from Mississippi imputed or intended to make him a traitor, he would expose him as a falsehood to him, nothing except the fact that that was the Senate would prevent him denouncing him as a blackguard, coward and liar. Senator Lamar said that the Senator understood him correctly. He begged pardon of the Senate, impudently lauded and it had to have been said, even if it was such as no good man would deserve and no brave man would wear. The discussion of the power of the Senate to send for absent Senators was resumed, and motion of Senator Lamar to compel the attendance of absentees having been agreed to, the Sergeant-at-Arms at 9:45 a. m. proceeded to the execution of the order.

At 11:50 Senator Witmer made a parliamentary inquiry. It was voted that the legislative day of Thursday would commence at noon. The other responded in the affirmative, and on motion of Senator Witmer the Senate adjourned, and recessed. According to the length of the previous session the journal was not completely made up, and suggested that the reading thereof be dispensed with. Senator Conkling objected, and insisted on the observance of the rule which provides that the business is suspended when the journal is read. The motion was carried. The Fire Record.

NEWCASTLE-TYNE, June 19.—A fire broke out this morning in the Metropolitan Hotel, situated in the Strand, and the extension at Crosby and Prince street, between his main building and Niblo's Garden. It was soon under control. Damage $35,000.

A Rolling Mill Strike.

ALLEGTON, June 19.—Three hundred helpers and puddlers employed in the Allegton rolling mills struck last night for an advance of five cents per heat, and the mills suspended operations.

Education in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, June 19.—The elementary education bill, which the clerics bitterly opposed, has passed the Senate by a vote of 33 to 31.

Rothschild's Bill.

LONDON, June 19.—By the will of Baron Rothschild disputes of personality to the amount of £200,000.

Prince Louis Napoleon Killed.

LONDON, June 19.—Prince Louis Napoleon was killed while on a reconnoitering expedition.

Death of a Cardinal.

ROME, June 19.—Cardinal Carlo D'Adda is dead.

A Sharp Rascal.

Tobacco Plant.

Durham has recently been visited by a sharp and mischievous rascal, and we desire to warn our sister towns of the impostor who is going through the country, giving lectures on the tobacco plant speeches, and then after 6 o'clock the Democrats insisted on a vote upon the bill and cutting off further debate. If now the Democrats would agree to adjourn he had no doubt that a vote could be reached to postpone the bill, and he added that, with the consent of Republicans generally, no attempt would be made to delay the proceedings to-morrow beyond the limits of proper debate. After further remarks by Mr. Wilson, the discussion in which the former said there was no time yesterday when he would not have consented to such an arrangement as that now suggested, Senator Carpenter's proposal was agreed to, and on motion of Senator Thompson.

BOSTON.—Mr. McMahon (Ohio) submitted the conference report upon the judicial expense bill (under this report section 2 of the bill will prohibit the making of any contract or incurring of any expense until and unless the revised statutes authorizing the appointment or payment of general or special deputy marshals for services in connection with elections or on election day). The report is as follows:

Mr. Munroe (Ohio), one of the conferees on the part of the House, explained the reason of his opposition to the report, and in answer to Mr. Cox expressed his intention to vote against it. Mr. Cox himself moved that the bill should be referred to a committee for further consideration, and then after 6 o'clock the Democrats insisted on a vote upon the bill and cutting off further debate. If now the Democrats would agree to adjourn he had no doubt that a vote could be reached to postpone the bill, and he added that, with the consent of Republicans generally, no attempt would be made to delay the proceedings to-morrow beyond the limits of proper debate. The report is as follows:

Mr. Springer (Illinois) replied to Mr. Garfield and declared that the President voted for the bill, but not in his opinion in the attitude of defying the majority in Congress and demanding of that majority to do what was wrong. They would not do it. Never! (Jeering remarks on the Republican side of: "What, never?") Mr. Garfield then said, "I am reporting to you the amount of Garfield, and provoked derisive jeers of Republicans by an allusion to the President as 'his fraudulence.'

The discussion was closed by a speech from Mr. McMahon after which a vote was taken and the conference report adopted by a strict party vote of 103 to 79. The House then took up the bill to provide for the exchange of trade dollars for legal tender or silver dollars, and after a speech from Mr. Garfield, and Mr. Seward, the bill was passed.

GOING TO RUIN.

A foreigner unacquainted with the political usages and journalism of this country would have good grounds for believing the assertion made almost daily that the nation was on the verge of ruin. Particular papers of either side advocate their respective political creeds, and endeavor to convince everyone except themselves and the professional politicians that unless their cause prevails evils manifold and undoubtful will result. Disrespectful personal allusions appear, for it was long ago discovered that ridiculous in most cases was a more potent weapon than argument. Still, underlying all this surface froth of badinage is a certain amount of respect, for as a rule only men of ability and fair moral character are put forward for the suffrage of the people. To be sure, in limited localities and where the office to be filled is of little consequence the rule may be the exception. But it will, nevertheless, be found that the man most vigorously assailed in politics, religion, or political economy, is the one that is most feared—that his utterances and deeds command the largest attention.

The national territory is so large and its productions so diversified that the opposing interests seem bound to clash at every step, and yet time seems to soften their opposition by change of centers of production. Forty years ago the South was for "free trade," her great cotton interests demanding it, while New England and Pennsylvania were vigorously fighting for a "protective tariff;" the former to maintain her great manufacturing industries in both woolen and cotton fabrics, and the latter on account of her iron production. Now the "tariff tinkers" are laughed at. The Atlanta Dispatch advocates less cotton planting and more corn raising, and says that there are thousands of acres in that State that are well fitted for sheep-raising and wool-growing, and Tennessee and northern Georgia are expatiating on the advantages to be derived from the iron works at Chattanooga, "the Pittsburgh of the South," while the New England manufacturers can produce their goods so much cheaper and better than the English that they do not fear competition.

This puts one of the old sectional issues out of the way; the other, the slavery question, is also dead. Yet, to a certain degree, the business of the country is still unsettled, and it may be truthfully attributed to the wild utterances of rabid politicians and a partisan press. This has had a bad effect; yet the danger after all is not so serious, and if those who are engaged in fomenting discord would but stop and see that they are hurting themselves as well as the country at large, it would be averted altogether.

New enterprises are undertaken weekly; new industries are springing up, that augur well for future prosperity. The Mississippi region will be benefited immensely by the improvements at the mouth of that river as Captain Eads has only 1,500 feet of concrete to lay and the South Pass jetties will be finished. He obtained $500,000 about two weeks ago from the Treasury, upon showing that he was ahead of his contract, the water in the jetty channel being over the required depth. It will require $300,000 more to complete the great work.

From Florida we learn that General Sandford proposes to turn that almost unknown country to good account. He is negotiating for the importation of Italian companies to be located on his land in Alachua county in that State. The colonists will be practical gardeners and grape-growers. The object of their importation is to introduce the cultivation of foreign varieties of grapes in Florida for the manufacture of wine.

Wendell Phillips says that the Republican party has ruined the South and bankrupted the West and compelled the negro to fly, and his former Republican associates do not admire this style of talk for the reason, we presume, that the statement would not particularly benefit their political schemes. Yet it was not their fault that the South wasn't ruined. Cotton had been commanding high prices, and lately a trade has sprung up between this country and Great Britain. Within the past few months, nearly every steamer leaving Boston and New York for Liverpool has carried from three hundred to three thousand barrels, and there seems to be good reason for the expectation that the shipment of sugars to the present country may become a more important auxiliary of our export trade. A temporary falling off in demand the last few weeks has been caused by the fact that English-bound vessels have been heavily laden, and that freight accommodations were not easily procurable.

In our State railroads are being pushed forward, and soon a large extent of their territory will be accessible by their means. The earth's products have done well this year, and questions of home manufacture are attracting the attention of our people. With cotton factories in operation, lumbering es- ablishments clearing away the immense forests and proving a source of wealth, our large field crops in healthy condition, surely North Carolina is anything but ruined, and offers as many advantages for settlers as any other State.

And the Old North State is but a type of the rest. Manufactures that have been closed for years are swinging open the doors—the call for labor is widespread—there no need of starving. The country is not going to ruin!

A WASHINGTON special to the Cincinnati Gazette says there is no longer any doubt that the friends of Senator Chandler intend to push him persistently from the first opportunity movement as a Presidential candidate before the next national convention. They are actively looking over the ground, and some work has already been done, both in the National Committee and out of it.

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPHIA AND SICK HEADACHE

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases or subsides; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are constipated, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up sufficient energy to try it. In fact, it distresses every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

CAPTAIN EADS, of jetty fame, says "it is idle to spend $150,000,000 in digging a canal through the Isthmus when by spending one-third as much along the line of the present Panama Railroad it will be perfectly easy to take ships and their cargoes bodily over the Isthmus." His plan would be simply to dig a ship canal with locks alongside the railroad. He believes it to be practicable, and, as compared with the plan lately recommended at the Isthmus Canal conference, on the other side, very economical.

For the first time in the history of New York State, all the administrative officers of the State are to be chosen at next fall's election on a single day. The Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, the Comptroller, the Secretary of State, the Attorney General and the Treasurer. The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor are to hold office for three years, while the others are elected for two years.

It appears to us that if yesterday's report of the proceedings in the House is correct, Mr. Garfield entertains peculiar views. He says: "The bill judicial places the President in an attitude where he must either 'observe his oath and execute the laws and thereby subject himself to impeachment, or he must violate his oath and conscience.' How the President can be impeached for observing his oath an executing the laws is a new idea, which no one but an impeachment hunter would think of.

The Ruler of the Whole Parrot.

AS SUNG BY SIR R. B. HAYES, F. P.
When first I counted in I thought I could see.
The speedy downfall of the Stalwart—
So I started to play a game that was new.
And the troops from the South I then withdrew.
I withdrew the troo's so gracious,
That I was soon despised by the whole party.

I quickly proceeded to raise a storm
With a very lively scheme of official reform,
And ordered the officeholders every where.

Political work to beware,
I issued my orders with a hand so free
That I gained the disgust of the whole party.

The party I saw was consumed by fears
Of the terrible schemes of the Brigadiers.

And nothing at all could preserve its spirit.

But the votos that I alone could sign,
The votos I signed so vigorous as these
They now I am ruler of the whole par-

tee.

The party I saw was consumed by fears
Of the terrible schemes of the Brigadiers.

And nothing at all could preserve its spirit.

But the votos that I alone could sign,
The votos I signed so vigorous as these
They now I am ruler of the whole par-

tee.

Though Conkling may fancy that Grant's to be King,
And others may boast of the Senators' ring.

They will all yet discover that I alone

Am the veto man on the White House threshold.

My words I will play so sagaciousee

That the candidate's sure to be Sherman or me.

The Extent of the "Exodus."

Chattanooga Times.
There are in the South to-day less than one million negroes, represented and denominated by the name of slaves. Not more than fifteen thousand have removed from the South since the war began.
About five, may be six thousand of those have emigrated since the first of January, 1879. Only a few communities have been entirely freed by the movement, and only a planter here and there has been seriously injured.
Fully as many negroes have moved in the South since the war as have moved out, and those moving in have been generally a better class than those who have gone.

The nominations in Ohio will make politics peculiarly interesting to Mrs. General Sherman. Naturally she wants to see her husband's brother successful in his ambition, but if he fails she will unite herself right in the other's path. Her favor will be divided between brother Ewing and brother-in-law Sherman.

Interest to Frye.

The gentleman who edits the literary branch of the Republican party seems to have allowed his subscription to the Okolona States to expire without renewing it.
